GENERAL REVIEW.

CHICAGO, January 1, 1874.

CHARLES E. CULVER, Esq., President:

Sir — At the beginning of another year I beg to present to yourself, the members of the Board of Trade, and others interested, the Sixteenth Annual Report of the Trade and Commerce of Chicago, embracing the statistical compilations of the business of 1873, and other matter of a kindred nature. In presenting these statements, it may be proper to refer somewhat in detail to the leading characteristics of the year's business, and perhaps take a hasty view, both retrospective and prospective, of the general situation in a business point of view.

During the first eight-and-a-half months of the past year, the business of our city was marked by great activity and a high degree of prosperity; and during the remainder, under conservative influences, it has prospered to an extent scarcely hoped for during the latter part of September and the early days of October. The widespread credit panic which fell upon the country in September last, at a time when business in this city in all branches was most active, did not, of course, pass over us without serious temporary derangement and disorganization in financial affairs. It seemed scarcely possible for this city, just emerging from the effects of the dire calamity which befell it two years previous, to recuperate under many weary months of struggle and embarrassment; and, indeed, had not an active foreign demand existed for those staples of which the Northwest had an abundance, we might, and probably would, have found the results much more serious than have been realized. Individual embarrassment undoubtedly does exist in our midst, and in many instances where credit has been obtained on enterprises not immediately productive, or only partly developed, sacrifices may still have to be submitted to; but taken as an aggregate, Chicago may be said to have safely weathered the storm; and now, at the outset of a new year, with sails full-spread to the favoring breeze, again rides majestically on her way. Our early recovery from the shock of the financial hurricane which so completely paralyzed some of our sister cities, was in large measure attributable to the wise policy of our banks in refusing to yield to the device adopted in most large cities of paying their depositors in their unauthorized and illegal certificates of indebtedness, thereby, instead of assisting to allay, contributing, in no small degree, to increase the feeling of distrust so infectious and almost universal. It was a noteworthy and most instructive fact, that so soon as it became a settled policy on the part of our banks that they would assist, to the extent of their ability, in tiding over the difficulties of the moment, confidence began to revive, and instead of heavy drains upon their vaults, money began to flow in, and they became stronger day by day. No better illustration could be adduced that confidence in man is measured largely by man's confidence in himself. Too much credit cannot be given to our bankers for their very successful efforts to sustain the financial standing of the city, its merchants and themselves.

Building operations have been pressed less vigorously during the past year than in 1872, but still a great number of substantial and elegant structures have been erected or are in progress. The business center of the city is now well built up, and the capacity of nearly all new buildings being greatly in excess of those of ante-fire days, it is not surprising that many of the upper stories are only partly occupied. The increase of capacity, especially for office purposes, is certainly all that could have been expected in full ten years of such improvement as was likely to have been made without the intervention of the great fire; and it may be seriously questioned whether construction has not been pushed to an extent and in a style somewhat in advance of present needs. Owners of realty are entitled to great credit for their successful efforts to improve their property in style so substantial and beautiful, but except in the closing of unsightly gaps, here and there, it would seem now to be the wiser policy to refrain, for a time, from further elaborate and expensive erections.

Our population has steadily and largely increased, and, judging by all the ordinary modes of calculation, without any official counting, it is probably not less than 430,000.

The wholesale merchandise trade of the city has been prosperous, and has largely exceeded the heavy business of 1872. A remarkably small number of our wholesale merchants appear to have suffered, in standing or credit, by the late financial crash; and, taken as a whole, they were probably never in more comfortable situation than at the present. It will be observed, by reference to tables herewith, that the importations of foreign goods have been large, and that our merchants are importing mainly under the provisions of the act of Congress of July, 1870, allowing direct importations to certain specified interior cities, without the delay and expense incident to an examination and appraisement of the goods at the point of landing from foreign countries; and assuming that the amount of such importations at the different interior cities to which the provisions of the act apply, fairly represents the relative business of each, in imported goods, it is especially noticeable and gratifying that our city so far exceeds any of her competitors.

Manufacturing enterprises have increased largely, and, as a rule, have been conducted with satisfactory results. In the body of this report will be found a summarized statement of the manufacturing interests of Chicago, compiled from the results arrived at in a canvass of the city made during the past autumn. From this it will be observed that, at that time, there were reported, in the city, 690 manufacturing establishments, employing a capital of near $44,000,000, and over 45,000 operatives. This statement, large as it is, will, upon a critical examination of the work from which the figures are obtained, be conceded as below the true figures,—some of the largest establishments not being included, their proprietors declining information, and many well-known smaller ones being either neglected or not reported for similar reasons. Of the establishments enumerated, less than 130 were in existence prior to 1860. As yet the manufacture of woolen and cotton goods is neglected, not only in this city, but generally throughout the West. As labor is rapidly accumulating, it may be reasonably hoped that the day is not distant when these and all branches of manufacture will be more fully developed than now, and when the consumer of our agricultural products, who is the producer of our dry goods and other imported articles, will be side by side with the producer of the former and consumer of the latter. Herein may, and probably does, lie the true remedy for the supposed evils under which our agriculturalists are suffering in the way of excessive charges in conveying their products to consuming markets.

The trade of the past year in flour, grain, live stock, and other products of the farm, has been unprecedentedly large; and to this fact the Northwest may justly attribute the enviable position it to-day holds in financial credit; and, indeed, the whole country is to be congratulated that, at a time when all the available resources of the people were called into requisition to sustain our credit abroad and meet our accumulating obligations, a fund so immense was ready for the necessary drafts. It is this that has turned the so-called balance of trade in our favor; and if reasonable prudence is exercised in future purchases of foreign commodities, it may be hoped that the West can, in the future, as at present, furnish the means to pay for more than its share of all obligations so incurred. In this connection, an estimate of the value of agricultural products shipped from this city in 1873 may be of interest and value, and is herewith presented,—premising, however, that the figures presented are clearly within the true value, no exact data of value being attainable:

Shipments of flour and grain, equal to 98,935,413 bushels, estimated value..	$63,500,000
Live stock	57,000,000
Product of cattle and hogs	30,500,000
Product of the dairy	3,500,000
Wool and hides	15,000,000
Highwines and alcohol	7,500,000
Seeds and broom corn	2,000,000
Sundry other commodities	1,000,000
Total	$180,000,000

The general course of trade in breadstuffs and provisions has been marked by more than usual regularity, and, as a whole, has, it is believed, been reasonably profitable. The markets have been less subject to violent fluctuation, and dealers have apparently sought more to rest values on intrinsic worth than by attempted manipulations of prices. A large foreign demand has existed for our leading commodities during most of the year, and, while only a small percentage of our product has found consumers beyond our own territorial limits, the prices of the whole have been largely controlled by the prices current in Europe. For the course of prices current throughout the year, reference is made to detailed tables under appropriate heads.

Very large amounts of both flour and grain are sold in this city for shipment eastward by rail, the property, in some cases, passing through the city without transshipment, and, in others, being shipped from points reached by lines not directly connected with us. In the various tables of receipts and shipments published herewith, and in those published daily, indicating the movement of property to and from the city, no division is made between that actually warehoused in this city and that moved in cars not transhipped. This course is, in the main, entirely proper, as indicating the general movement; and if not reported at this point would escape recognition altogether; and, as intimated before, it is really, in the main, Chicago business. There is, however, an uncertain amount shipped from Milwaukee by rail (mainly during the winter months) that it would be desirable to exclude from the statements, if it were possible without so disturbing them as to destroy their value. The amount claimed to have been shipped from Milwaukee, by the two lines of railroad connecting with this city, in 1873, is not at hand; but in it would doubtless be included large amounts from interior points which merely passed through that city in transitu, and which have no proper place in the movement to and from that city, not equally proper to be included in the movement at this point. The whole question is of little importance so far as the business of this city is concerned; and it is only on account of the duplication of a portion of the eastward bound shipments from the west that the matter has any bearing on the business of the country; and for all such calculations, it will be approximately proper for the reported shipments from Milwaukee, by its two southern lines of railway, to be deducted from the shipments by rail from Chicago eastward. Even this will not produce an absolutely correct result; because no small amount of the flour and wheat so passing through or from Milwaukee is consigned only to Chicago.

FLOUR.

The trade in flour has been active during a large part of the year; and prices have usually kept pace with those of wheat. The receipts have been 2,487,376 barrels against 1,532,014 in 1872. The city manufacture has been 264,363 barrels, an increase of 77,395 barrels over 1872. The shipments have aggregated 2,303,490 barrels,—much the larger portion of it being shipped by rail. These figures are very largely in excess of any previous year. Large amounts of flour are shipped through without change at this point,—probably the most of it sold in this market, but some shipped direct from the miller to eastern consumers or for sale in eastern markets. No new mills for the exclusive manufacture of flour have been erected in the city within the year.

WHEAT.

The receipts of wheat have been 26,266,562 bushels, against 12,724,141 bushels in 1872. The last two crops of spring wheat have been of unusually good quality, and the marketable surplus, especially of the crop of 1873, has been largely in excess of any previous year. Prices, in the main have been satisfactory to the farmer, and the movement has been steady and active. The demand for exportation has been sufficient to absorb the arrivals at the seaboard; and, in fact, a very considerable percentage of the shipments have been sold for export in advance of arrival. Since the close of lake navigation, large amounts have gone forward by rail to meet the pressing demand for export. This is comparatively a new feature in the course of trade, as hitherto but little wheat has been taken by rail during the winter. Rates of freight on these shipments have been largely in excess of what may be reasonably expected to prevail on the re-opening of the lake route in the spring.

CORN.

The crops of corn in Illinois and the adjoining States, in 1871 and 1872, were of unusually large proportions, and of excellent quality. That of 1872 was not secured in as fine a condition as the previous one, which matured during the exceptionably dry autumn of 1871, and hence not likely to keep as well when stored in warehouse. The movement of new corn, during the winter of 1872-3, was very large, and the spring found our city elevators nearly full of corn,—a considerable portion of which was not in condition to justify holding until the heat of summer, and apprehensions of heating were realized to a larger degree than for some years previous. About the middle of June some of the winter-stored corn began to show signs of damaging, and from that time until the close of July there were frequent “postings” of corn as out of condition. The aggregate of such postings were, however, inconsiderable as compared with the amount held in store. Less than 500,000 bushels were declared out of condition, and much of it was only slightly damaged. The effect, however, of the announcements made was to temporarily depreciate considerably more than that actually affected. The condition of this grain, and the attendant loss resulting therefrom, gave rise to a somewhat heated discussion touching the manner of storing grain in large masses,—it being claimed that, if stored in smaller bulk, the risk of damage would be materially reduced. It does not, however, appear that experience justifies such conclusions, and it is doubtful if the additional expense and trouble of keeping lots separate, or in small parcels, would be compensated by any advantages resulting therefrom. The percentage of grain damaged while in store, by heating, taking a series of seasons together, is quite insignificant, and, under any mode of handling, could not probably be wholly avoided; and, in the attempt to eradicate this occasional evil, it would scarcely pay to impose even a small additional tax on the whole movement. The experience of the past seems to indicate that the inspection of corn, as to dryness, should be maintained on a rigid standard, and that all showing any signs of early damage should be disposed of for immediate consumption. All expedients for the drying or curing of partly damaged corn have, so far, proved of little value as compared with the expense, save in exceptional and peculiar cases. The crop of 1873 is, from all present indications, largely below its two predecessors, both as to quality and amount. In Illinois probably but little, if any, over half as many bushels in weight will be realized as in 1872. The crop in Iowa is also below the average in yield, but probably not deficient in as large a measure as in Illinois. It would appear that our receipts for 1874 were likely to be materially less of this cereal than the past year, even admitting the fact that there still remain large amounts of old corn in producers' hands. Prices have largely advanced near the close of the year, as the deficiency in the new crop became more fully realized; and the receipts for the last two months of 1873 have been much less than they would have been under the influences of a better yield for the supply of another year. Receipts for the year have been 38,157,232 bushels against 47,366,087 bushels in 1872.

OATS.

In oats the course of trade has been of a remarkably conservative and legitimate character, and prices have suffered no material fluctuations,—opening in January at $24\frac{1}{2}$ cents, and, almost without interruption, appreciating, closing at about $38\frac{1}{2}$ cents per bushel. The receipts have been largely in excess of any previous year, aggregating 17,888,724 bushels.

RYE.

Receipts of rye have been 1,189,464 bushels. In 1872 they were 1,129,086 bushels. Prices have ruled steady. The movement eastward has been larger by lake and less by rail; and a much greater proportion of our shipments have reached tidewater than in the previous late years.

BARLEY.

The trade in barley has been largely controlled, especially since the last harvest, by a few individuals; and prices have been dictated without much reference to immediate consumptive demand. The crop of 1873, not only in the west, but throughout the country, proved to be much below the expectation of most dealers, both in quantity and quality. At the close of the year prices of No. 2 are unsettled, ranging from 140 to 145 cents per bushel. Receipts of the year were 4,240,239 bushels.

LIVE STOCK.

The attention of farmers appears to be increasingly given to the raising of stock, and the receipts at this point have been steadily swelling, until the business has reached vast proportions. The receipts of the past year have been, of cattle, 761,428 head; of hogs (live and dressed), 4,570,906; of sheep, 291,734. In 1872 there were, of cattle, 684,075; of hogs, 3,488,528; and of sheep, 310,211. The total value of live stock received at the Union Stock Yards of this city, in 1873, is estimated to have been $91,321,162, against $75,475,000 in 1872. The decrease in the production of corn, the past year, stimulated the early movement of stock; and during November and December the receipts of hogs were far in excess of any corresponding time in previous years.

PROVISIONS.

The provision trade has been large, and generally produced profitable results. A good demand has existed for both meats and lard for the European markets. The movement has been steady, and the demand active. The number of hogs packed, during the season of 1872-3, was 1,456,650; and, up to the 31st of December, of the present season, the number packed was 1,060,668. For the corresponding time in 1872 it was 659,543. The total packing of the present season will not, probably, fall below 1,500,000, although the general packing of the West is expected to be less than last season. During the past year, extensive yards for the accommodation of live stock were constructed at East St. Louis, and it was anticipated that a large increase in the packing at that point would be realized—the location being favorable for the preparation of meats for the southern markets, and also reasonably convenient to the supply of stock. It does not, however, appear that the enterprise has thus far resulted in any marked diversion of stock from this market.

LUMBER.

The receipts of lumber and shingles have been somewhat less than in 1872,—being, of lumber, 1,123,368,671 feet, and of shingles, 517,923,000. Prices have ruled lower; and, for a considerable portion of the year, the demand has been light, with a dull and lifeless market.

MISCELLANEOUS.

In wool, hides, seeds, and other articles of farm product, the business has been considerably increased over previous years, and has been conducted with very satisfactory results. In the products of the dairy, a very marked improvement has been discernible, both in the volume of the business and in the character of the goods sent to market. Increased and more careful attention to the manufacture of butter and cheese, in this and the adjoining States, seems to be receiving its just recognition and reward. The difference in cost of a prime or inferior article of these products bears no comparison with the difference in the net returns of the one or the other. It is hoped, and, from present indications, believed, that, in a few years, the Northwest will become as noted for fine qualities of dairy products as it has been, in the not distant past, for its large production of the lowest grades worthy the name of butter and cheese. Organizations have been formed, in several of the more prominent interior cities, devoted especially to the marketing of these commodities, and the discussion of questions bearing upon the producers and their interests. The results seem to be highly gratifying, and we may reasonably hope that the time has fully passed when really good products of Northwestern dairies need to be branded fraudulently to insure a fair consideration in the markets of the world. During the past year, very considerable amounts of both butter and cheese have been purchased in this market, and shipped direct to Europe.

FINANCES.

The monetary affairs of a great commercial community are among its most important features, and a city's prosperity depends largely on the confidence capitalists may have, or fail to have, in its prospects, and the remunerative character of its enterprises. A careful consideration of the situation in this respect enters properly and largely into all sound business calculations, and it may not be entirely inappropriate to allude briefly to such a topic in this place. Chicago in respect to its accumulation of solid capital has advanced within the past few years in a very large measure, and now probably possesses as fair a proportion of actual means engaged in, or obtainable for, business purposes as most of the cities of the country. The capital employed in banking, and in other ways available, as loans for commercial purposes, is not, perhaps, as large as could be profitably absorbed at seasons when the movement of agricultural products is most active, but still, no great inconvenience is suffered from the lack of funds for all legitimate purposes. Long loans are usually taken for account of eastern or foreign parties, thus relieving home capital for the uses of current business operations.

During the past year, with the exception of a few weeks when the financial machinery of the whole country was in a disorganized condition, our money market has ruled reasonably easy, and all worthy borrowers have been able to secure needed accommodations on reasonable terms. Since the panic of September a more conservative feeling has been manifested by those possessed of loanable capital; and some needing aid, and perhaps entitled to it, have failed to make satisfactory negotiations, and have, perhaps, been somewhat inconvenienced in consequence. This state of things, however, is not so much the effect of an absolute scarcity of money as it is of timidity on the part of capitalists to invest in loans not immediately convertible. It cannot be disguised that in the extensive collapse of last autumn, confidence in even really meritorious securities received a very decided shock, which may not be recovered from in a considerable time, and, pending the slow recovery, many, impatient at delay, have persuaded themselves that the country really is lacking in a necessary supply of the currency representative of money, and a persistent demand is being made on Congress to authorize the issue of more circulating paper. It may not be easy to determine how such an issue would benefit those most clamorous for it, as it is scarcely to be hoped that it could restore confidence in securities now under the ban of more or less of suspicion, unless such issue was made in so large a measure as to create a distrust in the paper itself. There does not appear to be any lack of currency for the prosecution of business, save in cases where extensive loans based on confidence in men or securities are needed, and it is more than doubtful if speculative borrowers would find their names or securities any more acceptable as a basis for loans, under a moderate increase in the volume of the currency. Currency in these days is the representative of government credit, and the experience of the late panic has abundantly proved that all classes cling to the government's obligations in all its forms more closely than to any other species of security; and this fact, probably more than any other, may be accepted as the true reason (if it be a fact) why large amounts of currency previously afloat in the channels of trade have recently been withdrawn and hid away. With restored confidence in other securities these hoardings will largely reappear, to be more profitably employed. The same result would obtain if the circulating medium were all coin. As no serious complaint existed in regard to the supply of currency previous to the late panic, it would seem that whatever of scarcity has since, or does now, exist in the supply of loanable capital is more the result of a preference for the non-interest-paying notes of the government than for any questionable securities offered in exchange for them. If this be the true reason for the supposed inadequate supply of currency, may it not be better policy to await, with what of patience we may, the return of confidence in the securities we may have to offer, rather than assist in precipitating upon the country an avalanche of irredeemable paper currency to be a burden upon the business and a disturber of all values, when, as we hope, at no distant day financial matters shall have again assumed their usual features.

The anomalous condition of our present paper circulation must, while it continues, be a source of much discussion and the subject of widely differing theories. With the inauguration of our national banking system arose a new order of financiering; previously, a bank issuing a promissory note was expected to be in readiness to redeem it on presentation in money, but since this era redemption has practically ceased, and no thought is given to the protection of the bank issues by any redemption whatever. For all business purposes the national bank note is as good as that in which it is redeemable, and none care to go to the expense or trouble of demanding an exchange of one promise for another, neither of which can be followed beyond the promise to pay. The two classes of currency are so evenly balanced, as to volume, that the redeeming medium is not perceptibly improved in value by its relative scarcity, as it would be if it were materially less than the amount of the bank issues. Hence, it comes to be worthy of consideration whether or not it may be a wise policy to authorize a further issue of the national bank notes, to be apportioned to such sections of the country as need them, such issue to be accompanied by a corresponding reduction in the volume of the legal tender issue. The effect of such a proceeding must inevitably be to elevate the value of both classes of the currency, and, if carried to any considerable extent, would result in an appreciation of the whole to very near the specie standard, without injurious effects upon the general public, and largely at the expense of the banks by whom, in view of the large advantages realized by them from the issue of currency, such appreciation ought perhaps to be chiefly borne. Probably few will deny that a return to the measurement of values by the world's recognized standard ought to be kept in view, and that the road thereto should be rendered as free from peril as possible, and should be attended by the least possible cost or disturbance of the business of the country.

TRANSPORTATION.

The discussion of the subject of transportation has grown to be one of absorbing interest, not only in the west, where for many years it has held a prominent place in public thought, but has extended throughout the country, and, from its position as a commercial question, has advanced to one scarcely second to any in a political point of view. The variety of the schemes suggested as remedies for existing evils provoke discussion and elicit opposition in about equal degree with those touching financial affairs. A marked feature of many, or perhaps most, of those schemes is a contemplated heavy drain upon the National Treasury in aid of works, some of which are, doubtless, meritorious, but many are extremely visionary, and some, perhaps, should be properly designated as attempts at downright national robbery. And the support that even the wildest of these measures appears to receive admonishes a thoughtful public as to the general tendency of the times toward an indiscriminate appropriation and use of the public money.

The question of what are the remedies that ought to be applied by Government, either State or National, is well worthy the careful consideration of our legislators, and the intelligent agitation and discussion of the subject will, it is hoped, result in the development of measures of a character to relieve the people of unjust burdens, and at the same time preserve good faith with corporations created to serve the public as common carriers.

It must be confessed that legislative efforts in this State to remedy alleged evils in railway management have so far proved worse than abortive, and it would, perhaps, be difficult to name any substantial point gained for the benefit of the general public by the legislation of the last few years on the subject of railway control; unless it be the knowledge gained that the machinery devised and set in motion has proved valueless. It may be safely assumed, as demonstrated, that the attempt to establish by a general law a schedule of rates to be charged by railway corporations, irrespective of times, amount of business or other circumstances, is absurd, and must be either inoperative or greatly damaging to the patrons or owners of the railway, or perhaps both. But it does not follow that no proper restrictions can or ought to be placed on this class of service, which may, not inappropriately, be called a public service. It probably is near the truth to state it as a fact, that the legislative power in seeking to do too much has failed in accomplishing anything that ought to be done.

It is an entirely new feature of public policy to fix, by legislative enactment, a schedule below which a corporation or a citizen shall not perform a service, but this the laws of this State seek to enforce on railway companies in numerous instances, by the scope of the bill now in force in regard to charges. It would seem enough if citizens were protected in this respect against unjust or extortionate charges, and allowed the full benefit of the competition many of them have purchased at heavy expense and sacrifice.

This city has suffered the evil effects of the State legislation in regard to railways in large measure during the past six months, by the diversion of business actually forced away from it by the operation of the laws, and many points in the interior have been similarly affected. All advocates of railway reform are agreed that competition is the most effectual remedy for the correction of abuses, and it seems strange that the first blow of legislative power should be leveled at this acknowledged regulator of the evils complained of.

But little has been done during the past year in regard to what may be called the inter-state traffic, but public sentiment is apparently gaining strength in favor of a supervision of this branch of the transportation question by the General Government. Bills have been introduced into Congress for the chartering of railway lines, and other measures are proposed, having the supervision of the immense through business in view. It probably would have a salutary effect if Congress were to firmly assert its power and determination to establish proper regulations over this service by the charter of railway companies to engage in it, or by the enactment of wholesome regulations applicable to existing lines. The construction of new lines of railway wholly by Government means, or by the aid of Government subsidies of any character, ought not, in the opinion of most conservative citizens, to be asked for or granted; past experience in this direction has not been of a character to justify any expectation of public benefit commensurate with the public expenditure; and, aside from the questionable policy of making such expenditures mainly for the benefit of a limited portion of the whole population, there is an important question of good faith to shareholders of existing lines. Investors in railway enterprises, as in others, are, and should be, subject to all legitimate competition, and must take their chances with such, but should not be liable to a ruinous competition maintained at the public charge.

The improvement of the water routes of the country are conceded to be within the proper scope of the operations of the General Government, and moderate expenditures in this behalf, if made at points judiciously selected, would tend greatly to facilitate the business of transportation and bring needed relief to the country at large. Perhaps no appropriation of an equal amount of money would produce so much real good in the way of controlling freight rates as the construction of a short line of canal from the Illinois to the Mississippi rivers on a line nearly due west from this city; this would open a continuous water navigation between Lake Michigan and the head waters of the Mississippi river, with its navigable branches above Rock Island, and, if constructed, would prove the key to all freight rates on property crossing the Mississippi river above Rock Island. It is hoped the Government will at least assume the immediate construction of this important and necessary work.

The Senate of the United States, by an able committee of its members, is engaged in investigations into the question of transportation in all its bearings, and it is expected that their report will be a very valuable acquisition to the information attainable on this subject, and will, perhaps, contain suggestions for the consideration of Congress and the country that may lead to a solution of this absorbing question.

Apologizing for the length of these introductory remarks, which have grown to proportions not intended at the outset,

I have the honor to be,

Very truly,

Your obedient servant,

CHAS. RANDOLPH,

Secretary.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

GENTLEMEN, MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF TRADE:

In conformity to the rules requiring at each annual meeting a report from the Board of Directors of the condition of the affairs of the Association, and also in accordance with the custom of reporting certain of its proceedings, and also of making such suggestions and recommendations as seem to it proper to make, the following is presented:

At the last Annual Meeting the assets of the Board were reported to be as follows, viz:

Six hundred shares of the stock of the Chamber of Commerce, cost	$55,861.63
Furniture and fixtures, cost	11,755.25
Investment in Commercial Building	10,854.00
Cash	1,201.62
Total	$79,672.50

THE RECEIPTS OF THE PAST YEAR HAVE BEEN AS FOLLOWS:

From initiation fees	$42,300.00
From annual assessment	41,300.00
From clerk's tickets	840.00
From visitors' tickets	2,787.00
From rent of sample tables	3,043.00
From dividends on Chamber of Commerce stock	8,524.00
Total	$98,794.00
Cash balance on hand January 6th, 1873	1,201.62
	$99,995.62

THE DISBURSEMENTS OF THE YEAR HAVE BEEN AS FOLLOWS:

For current expenses, including rent, heating, salaries, etc.	$39,999.67
Incidental expenses, including attorney's fees, investigation of Hough Elevator and entertainment of National Board of Trade	5,161.73
Market reports	4,639.81
Annual report	2,154.37
National Board of Trade	652.69
Withdrawals and deceased members	1,212.00
Additional payments on account of furniture and fixtures	1,327.70
Payments on account of Commercial Building	9,112.49
Purchase of 400 shares of Chamber of Commerce stock	35,542.00
Total	$99,802.46
Cash in hands of Treasurer	$104.88
Cash in hands of Secretary	88.28
	193.16
	$99,995.62

ASSETS AT THE PRESENT TIME:

One thousand shares Chamber of Commerce stock, cost.....	$91,403.68
Furniture and fixtures, say.....	10,039.95
Investment in Commercial Building.....	19,966.49
Cash in hands of Secretary and Treasurer.....	193.16
	<hr/>
	$121,603.23

The assessment for the ensuing year has been fixed at $25 for each member and clerk. Our present membership numbers 1,652, being an increase within the year of 298.

Recent accessions to the membership include many prominent citizens engaged in business hitherto not largely represented on 'Change. It is to be hoped that others engaged in the mercantile and manufacturing, as well as those in the banking business, may be induced, during the ensuing year, to give the benefit of their support and influence to this institution, which was established with the desire not only to advance the commercial character, but also to promote the mercantile and manufacturing interests of the city of Chicago.

CHARTERS AND RULES LEGALLY TESTED.

Many of you have entertained the opinion that there are those prominent in the legal profession who regard with disfavor the system of arbitration as provided by the rules of your Association. Whether such opinion be well founded or not, most determined efforts have been made during the last year to gain judicial decisions adverse to the constitutionality of the charter, and the legality of the rules of the Board of Trade. The following is quoted from an argument of learned counsel in a case brought in the court against your corporation: "The values involved in contracts made annually by the members of the Board of Trade between each other constitute an amount larger than all other dealings between citizens in the State within the same period. These transactions involve every variety and phase of legal question, and the adjustment of them under the forms of the law would call into requisition each year every form of action known in American jurisprudence. To allow the Directors of the Board of Trade, under the claim that the facts constituting these differences and offenses are against the corporation, to try and decide them, and enter decrees for the payment of money, under penalty of disfranchisement, is to oust the courts of their jurisdiction in more than half of the sum of the business transactions of the whole State." Whether such language does or does not justify the opinion referred to, it does certainly misrepresent the action of your Board of Directors, and the rules under which they act. Under the authority granted by its charter, the Association annually selects committees of arbitration and appeal, to whose decision questions of dispute and disagreement are, by mutual consent, referred; but there is no rule making such reference compulsory. The directors do not act as arbitrators, they neither assess money damages, nor "enter decrees for payment of money under penalty of disfranchisement." They do, however, upon certain conditions and circumstances, discipline members, by temporary suspension, under authority conferred upon them by a rule, in relation to which the Supreme Court of the State says: "One of the objects for which the Board of Trade was created undoubtedly was to promote a high standard of commercial honor and commercial credit in the city of Chicago, by securing among the members of the Board a prompt discharge of their pecuniary obligations without resort to the expensive and dilatory procedure of the courts of law. In order to accomplish this, the charter authorizes the Board to create within itself tribunals of reference and arbitration by whose decision the members shall be bound; but it does not confine the Board to the use of these means for the attainment of their objects. It expressly gives the power of expulsion, and under that power the corporation has adopted this by-law providing if a member fails to comply with a business contract made with another member he shall be expelled, and in our judgment it is well adapted to secure the objects which we have named, and preserve the high character and credit of the Board." The court goes on to say, "That a corporation purely commercial in its character would soon cease to be respectable or respected if it tolerated amongst its members a violation of an undisputed contract is too plain for argument." Of the several suits at law brought against the corporation during the year, the first was one in which the complainant or petitioner had been, by the preceding Board of Directors suspended from the privileges of the Association for failure to fulfill conditions of a business contract made with other members. The petitioner, by his able attorneys, claimed that suspension in the case involved the question whether the contract was valid; that to determine this question required the exercise of judicial power, which, by the constitution, was vested only in the courts; and that therefore the Board of Trade could not exercise the power; and, least of all, could the Board of Directors. The decision, although in favor of the petitioner, on account of assumed irregularities in the proceedings of the trial for suspension, confirmed former decisions as to the power of the Board. The language of the court was as follows: "Whether or not the petitioner has failed to comply with his contract, I do not regard as a question of judicial power within the meaning of the constitution. The question to be tried is this, whether he has broken conditions annexed to the franchise. The constitution never intended to vest the power to try such questions in the courts of justice. To do so would overthrow the adjudications of the last 150 years." The other suits brought against the corporation have either been withdrawn or decided in its favor. You are therefore to be congratulated in having a charter, rules and by-laws that have withstood the most fierce assaults, and that by referring disputed questions to your own chosen tribunals of arbitration, you can give decisions according to equity and justice without "calling into requisition each year every form of action known in American jurisprudence," and you can avoid "the expensive and dilatory procedure of the courts of law."

GRAIN INSPECTION.

Realizing that the improper and imperfect laws regarding the inspection of grain were working injury to all classes concerned therein, the Board of Directors did, during the last session of the General Assembly of this State, seek to secure such changes in the law as were, in their opinion, demanded by the interests involved. To this purpose, committees were appointed to visit the Legislature at Springfield; and notwithstanding members were publicly advised to give no hearing to the committee from this Board, they were courteously invited to attend joint meetings of the two houses, and it is believed they were instrumental in obtaining modifications in the warehouse law that have proved of great value. They, however, failed in influencing the legislation deemed most desirable. It is well known that the business of inspecting grain was assumed by the State by virtue of a law enacted at the instance of farmers and country dealers who had been made to believe that the business would be more properly done by the State than by the Board of Trade. While it may be due to the present Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners, and the former and present State Inspectors and Warehouse Registrars, to say they have evinced a desire to promote the interests of the trade, and have sought to know the views and wishes of the members of your body, it must also be said that under their administration complaints for unsatisfactory and erroneous inspection have been as frequent as before, and that notwithstanding the object of the law, and the plain duty of its officers to prevent, detect and expose warehouse frauds, the members of this Board have for their own information and protection been obliged to institute investigations into warehouse management. The investigations of a year or more ago, disclosed the perpetration, under State régime, of irregularities and frauds unparalleled in the history of the grain trade of the country, and the investigations made more recently show continued violations of the laws. It would seem that a few moments of reflection would suffice to convince any ordinary mind that the inspection of grain in Chicago is a matter of such vast importance, affecting, as it does, the value of many millions of dollars worth of property which changes ownership many times annually, and that the adoption and supervision of the execution of rules governing grain inspection and the registration of warehouse receipts require such practical experience with the business, and such perfect familiarity with the wants of the trade, together with such constant care and so much of thought and time, as to render it absolutely impossible for a board of three commissioners, having headquarters 160 miles distant from this business, to satisfactorily control its conduct, and at the same time succeed in enforcing laws regarding the management of railroads. It is not, therefore, surprising that the present law and its administration have proved unsatisfactory. In this connection it may not be improper to say that it is the unanimous opinion of your Board of Directors that compulsory inspection as conducted by this State is not only wrong in principle and theory, but is in practice detrimental to the interests of the agriculturists of the Northwest, and damaging to the trade and commerce of Chicago. The question presents itself to the minds of the Directors, and they submit the same to you: Has not the time arrived for this Board of Trade, acting, as it should, as the guardian of the commercial interests of this city, and of the welfare of the country tributary to it, to take active measures to enlighten producers, and others shipping grain to this market, of their true interest in this matter, with a view of obtaining their influence and co-operation to place the inspection of grain upon the same system or basis, and under the same control as is the inspection of flour, and that of provisions, highwines, and other property bought and sold on 'Change in this city.

SHORT WEIGHTS.

Complaints made for grain arriving by railroad falling short in quantity, as compared with shipper's weights, are so numerous and serious as to justify and demand the action of this Association. It has been suggested that weighmen appointed by the Board of Trade should be placed in the elevators to see that grain, as it is received, is correctly weighed. Elevator proprietors allow public weighmen, shipmasters and agents to watch and tally the weighing of grain received from and shipped by vessels and canal boats, and they have expressed a willingness to accord like privileges to those moving grain by railroads. But as long as railroad corporations do not acknowledge or admit their responsibility by guaranteed bills of lading for the quantity of grain they receive and undertake to carry, the evils complained of cannot, in the opinion of the Board of Directors, be remedied by simply watching the weighing of grain as it goes into store. Fortunately we have a law that, if enforced, would most effectually remove these complaints—a law passed at the instance of members of this Board, and approved in April, 1871. That law requires corporations in this State, receiving grain for transportation, to weigh the same, and to deliver quantity equal to that received. Its enforcement would not only correct the evil of short weights, by placing the responsibility and loss where it belongs, and thus insure proper care of grain whilst in transit, and a correct return of weights, but its enforcement would also correct other abuses growing out of the system of railway management that refuses to recognize the responsibility of the care and delivery of what is received for transportation; and it would also reduce the cost of transportation. Whatever is lost of property by accident, by stealth, or otherwise, whilst it is being moved, adds to the expense or cost of movement.

Companies transporting grain by water routes issue bills of lading guaranteeing delivery, at end of route, of the full amount taken for carriage; and such bills of lading are of service in commercial transactions, and afford material aid in moving the crops to the markets of the world; while the bills of lading given by railroad corporations, although, in a degree, affording facilities for legitimate business, give no evidence of quantity or value of property shipped. They, therefore, present a temptation to misrepresent, and sometimes offer a reward for rascality. Such bills of lading are unsuited to commercial purposes.

Believing that the law referred to is most wise, and that its enforcement would result in greater benefit to farmers and business men generally of this State than the enforcement of more recent enactments regarding railroad corporations, the Board of Directors would recommend calling the attention of the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to the importance of the law, with request that compliance with its requirements be enforced by them.

TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES.

With a view of calling public attention to the necessity of increased transportation facilities to the seaboard, and to obtain an expression of opinion on the subject, a memorial to Congress was prepared some months since by the Board of Directors, setting forth the inadequacy of present means for carrying property, and the advantage to be derived from the construction and operation of a double-track railway between Chicago and New York, to be worked exclusively in the tonnage business, and asking for a charter for the construction of such a work under judicious and proper restrictions and requirements as to capital stock, toll-rates, impartiality in the reception and transportation of freight and of cars belonging to individuals, companies and corporations, and responsibility for the care of property received for transportation. It is perhaps unnecessary to state that this action of the Board of Directors was not in the interest of any party or parties who have sought or who may seek to obtain subsidies or special aid from the Government for such a road. While urging the importance and necessity of improving water communication with the east, the Board of Directors beg to express their belief that there is an equal need of increasing the number of railway lines to the east and southeast. The water routes in this latitude of our country are closed one-third of the year. Neither the east nor the west can afford to depend entirely upon such avenues for an exchange of their productions. The movement of grain cannot be limited to the period of lake and canal navigation. So large has become the business of Chicago with the European markets that new and constantly opened avenues for its prosecution must be provided. Present railway companies are unable to meet at reasonable rates the winter demand for freight room. New roads are needed to create that competition that is required to cheapen cost of transportation, and to correct the evils and abuses of present railway management. But while the Directors would encourage enterprises so well calculated to promote the prosperity and growth of Chicago as is the cheapening of transportation of western productions, they would not approve of asking Congress to make grants of lands, subsidies of money, or remission of duties to any corporation, nor would they recommend Congress to grant a charter for railroads without the restrictions named in the memorial to which reference has been made. It must not be forgotten that railroad corporations are seeking to establish customs and principles for common carriers by rail different from and other than those observed by other carriers, and the issue to-day is in part whether they shall be subject to the same responsibilities and penalties as are others who are engaged in transportation.

Intimately connected with the question of transportation is that of charges to which grain arriving in New York is subject. Complaints are made that charges for weighing grain and towing boats are excessive, and operate to the prejudice of our trade relations with that city. Such charges are a direct tax upon grain, and undoubtedly are the result, in part at least, of the want of proper facilities for receiving, handling, and storing grain at the several railroad terminals at that point. With a view of removing or reducing this tax upon western productions arriving in New York, a committee has been appointed to confer with officers of the New York Produce Exchange Association, but as yet the committee have not had time to act.

Recent experience added to that of last year has demonstrated the need of requiring from managers of elevators guarantees or securities not heretofore given for the delivery of grain received by them for store. The act of 1871, requiring managers of public warehouses of class A to procure a license before transacting business as warehousemen, and requiring bonds with surety, conditioned for the faithful performance of duties of warehousemen, together with severe penalties for the violation of the law as provided, it is believed is well adapted to protect holders of warehouse receipts. The elevator proprietors of this city refuse to procure licenses and give bonds as required by the law, on the ground that certain sections of the act are unconstitutional; but inasmuch as the decision of the Supreme Court of the State, as to the constitutionality of the law, is expected soon to be promulgated, it may be wise to await such decision before seeking additional legislation upon the subject.

The events of the year have not only proved the stability of our corporation, and tested the strength of our banks, merchants and manufacturers, but have also established the trade supremacy of our city. Notwithstanding the interruption of business incident to a period of general financial distress, the trade of Chicago, for the last twelve months, greatly exceeds that of any former year. The recent financial panic, entirely unexpected in its coming and in its severity, overtook the business men of this city in the height of the busiest season, and when, as a matter of course, they were most extended. The effect of a money crisis, under such circumstances, could not have been otherwise than disastrous. All cities and all interests suffered alike, but not equally. Whilst many associations similar in character to our own were forced to succumb to the pressure of the panic, and were obliged temporarily to suspend business, this Board of Trade suffered no adjournment of its regular business sessions, and not one of its members was reported to have failed by reason of the panic. The certain and continuous increase in the membership of our Association is but an illustration of the marked growth and prosperity of those interests that make up what constitutes the business, trade and commerce of the city in which we live.

Respectfully submitted,

In behalf of the Board of Directors,

CHAS. E. CULVER,

President.

NOTE.—Up to 1850 only the aggregate valuations in the several counties were reported to the State officers, and from 1852 to 1857, inclusive, a few counties returned only the aggregates; hence the details of Real Estate and Personal Property Valuations are not complete for those years. In 1867 and 1868 the details of Valuation are not entirely correct, owing to changes by the operation of the equalization law; since 1868 the Valuations are as equalized. The total Valuations in each of the several years are entirely correct and official. Included in the Valuations of Personal Property for 1873 is $20,826,462, assessed as Valuation on Corporations other than Railroad.

The Valuations for 1873 as equalized are largely in excess of any previous year, and are believed to be fully sixty-five (65) per cent. of the cash value of Real and Personal Property, and still nearer the entire value of Railroad Property.

The State Debt, as noted, represents it as it stood on the 1st of January in each of the several years to 1868. In 1868, the Debt is noted as it stood December 31st. In 1869 and 1870, as it stood December 1st. In 1871, as it stood December 31st. In 1872 and 1873, as it stood December 1st.

MANUFACTURES OF CHICAGO.

The following Statement of the Manufacturing Interests of Chicago embraces 690 establishments, employing a capital of $43,759,200, and 45,074 operatives. It is compiled from a publication issued last autumn by Mr. S. S. Schoff, in which the names of the various manufacturing firms or corporations are given in detail. Several large and well-known establishments declined to report at all, and such are not included in the Statement, nor is any included whose place of manufacture is not within the city. As far as the facts claim to be given, they have the appearance of being substantially correct; but, for the reason stated, the aggregate falls considerably below the facts of a full statement.
